Scrofula, or King's Evil, Summer Arrangement.

is a constitutional disease, a corruption of Ablood, by which this fluid becomes vitiated blood, by which this fluid becomes vitiated, weak, and poor. Being in the circulation, it pervades the whole body, and may burst out in disease on any part of it. No organ is free from its attacks, nor is there one which it may not destroy. The scrofulous taint is variously caused by mercurial disease, low living, disordered or unhealthy food, impure air, filth and filthy habits, the depressing vices, and, above all, by the venereal infection. Whatever be its origin, it is hereditary in the constitution, descending "from parents to children unto the third and fourth generation;" indeed, unto the third and fourth generation;" indeed, it seems to be the rod of Him who says, "I will visit the iniquities of the fathers upor their children."

Its effects commence by deposition from the blood of corrupt or ulcerous matter, which, in the lungs, liver, and internal organs, is termed tubercles; in the glands, swellings; and on the surface, eruptions or sores. This foul cor-ruption, which genders in the blood, depresses the energies of life, so that scrofulous constitu tions not only suffer from scrofulous com-plaints, but they have far less power to withstand the attacks of other diseases; consequently vast numbers perish by disorders which, although not scrofulous in their nature, are still rendered fatal by this taint in the stem. Most of the consumption which dethis scrofulous contamination; and many structive diseases of the liver, kidneys, brain, , indeed, of all the organs, arise from or aggravated by the same cause. One quarter of all our people are scrofulous; heir persons are invaded by this lurking in-lection, and their health is undermined by it. To cleanse it from the system we must renovate the blood by an alterative medicine, and invigorate it by healthy food and exercise

AYER'S

Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla, the most effectual remedy which the medical skill of our times can devise for this everywhere prevailing and fatal malady. It is com-bined from the most active remedials that have been discovered for the expurgation of this foul disorder from the blood, and the rescue of the system from its destructive consequences. Hence it should be employed for the cure of not only Scrofula, but also those other affections which arise from it, such as Enuprive and Skin Diseases, St. Anthony's Fire, ROSE, OF BRYSHPELAS, PIMPLES, PUSTULES, BLOTCHES, BLAINS and BOILS, TUNORS, TETTER and SALT RIBERS, SCALD HEAD, RINGWORM, RHEUMATISM, STPHILITIC and MERCURIAL DIS-EASES, DROPST, DYSPEPSIA, DESILITY, and, nasts, Droper, Dyspersia, Deallitt, and, indeed, all Complaints amising from Vitlared on Invent Brood. The popular belief in "imperity of the blood" is founded in trath, for scrotula is a degeneration of the blood. The particular purpose and virtue of this Sarsaparilla is to purify and regenerate this vital fluid, without which sound health is impossible in contaminated constitutions. on taveignated constitutions.

We are enabled here to offer the community a cemely which, while it cures the above complaints with containty, is still perfectly harmless in any manties. Such a remedy is invaluable in districts ment of the disease, if taken on the first ap-h of its premonitory symptoms. It is not only cut remody ever yet discovered for this class no cent remay ever yet discovered by the case of complaints, but also the cheapest. The large mantity we supply for a dollar brings it within the each of every body; and in billious districts, where each of every and not prevails, every body should have it and use it freely both for cure and protecr mineral, consequently it produces no quinism or ther injurious effects whatever upon the constitu-and also.

While this is the state of things at our seat white this is the state of things at our seat of government, all the accesses to which should be as open and safe as the entrance to the harbor of New York, we are startled by the intelligence that the large division of our army on the Upper Potomac, under General Banks, one of our ablest commanders, has met with a most disastrous check in its operations. Before the disgrace of the Stone Bridge affair had been wiped out, comes the fatal day of Edwards's Ferry, in which of the gallant California regiment, consisting of more than six hundred men, correct two hundred returned safe, and their leader, the heruje Baker, whom the contry could ill afford to lose, fell at their head. On the circumstances of this defeat we need not dwell, since the government has acknowledged, it is bitter significance by not allowing the telegraph to tell a tenth part of the etory till a few days after it happened. The design of taking Gen. Banks's division across the Potomac and planting it on the Virginia side, to co-operate with the army under McClellan has in cores.

When we turn to what our navy is doing, we fairly drove our vessels from the Southwest Pass, one of the mouths of the Mississippi, in doing which they narrowly escaped being wreck-ed and falling into the power of the enemy. We have now formidable naval preparations on toot. Their destination is of course un-on foot. Their desination is of course un-known; but that important expeditions will ston go forth, and that blows will soon be struck with a vigorous hand, we do not doubt. Still we must not hope for easy and almost bloodless victories, as at the Hatterss Inlet— That surprise cannot be repeated. We shall find the rebels ready for us; there will be hard fighting; there will be losses of men, and permaps lusses of ships, and the triumphs which we haps losses of ships, and the triumphs which we expect must be won at a sad cost of human life.

We have stated these things not in a spirit off fault-finding, but simply with a view of showing the difficulties which spring up as we proceed in this conflict. These difficulties will encourage the rebels and prolong the war. We have the prospect of full employment for our army of half a million and for all our vessels of war. If there are any who except to see the of war. If there are any who expect to see the strite ended by negotistion and friendly adjuststrile ended by negotiation and friendly adjustment the present winter—and we have heard such expectations attributed to certain distin at the North. There can be no peace without national disgrace, until the rebels are fully sub-

The process of histories corpus has been called by Mr. Seward, in a late latter, the great writ of freedom, yet the right of suing out that wit has been suspended by the President.

These are vigorous proceedings; they strike us strangely; a friend of freedom can hardly hear of them without a pang of regret; yet the country has submitted to them from a coaviction of their necessity. Bold as they are, there is yet one step, which, to a distant epecuator of our politics, would seem less hold than these, which the Government, however, has not ventured to take—a step which would change the whole aspect of the war, bring to our side a Testal number of men enlisted. whole aspect of the war, bring to our side a host of new allies, call off the attention of the rebels from their present plans, and hasten the period of their subjugation. There is some-thing more sacred than personal liberty or than the freedom of the press; there is an institution the freedom of the press; there is an institution to be regarded with greater reverence than the habese corpus. The right of the rebel to his slave is apparently the last right to be touched. In all other respects the Government treats with scorn the conservatism which would op pose an old institution to the safety of the republic, in this one it hesitates.—N. York Post, Oct. 25.

Day.—As we walked up street a few evenings since, we overtook a led who had gained such a height that we hardly recognized him. Alluding to his rapid perpendicular growth, we saked him if it was not about time for him to stop—"I have nothing to do with it." said he, "I am not twenty-one yet."—New Bedford Mercury.

The Strength of the Enemy.

We fear it is already demonstrated that this war cannot be a short one. It is the duty of the country to fortify itself for the formidable conflict before us by taking the full measure of the strength per year.

The Protongation of the War.

When we look at the condition in which our country finds itself at the present moment, we must acknowledge that it is by no means flat which has done more than any other puone country finds itself at the present moment, we which has done more than any other puols must schnowledge that it is by no means flat journal to create the delusion that the South would prove a feeble enemy, has lately recent was brought together in such numbers—men of great physical hardibood, full of enthusiasm for the Union, and most ably commanded. This great army is posted on the soil of one of the rebel States, between the city of Washington and the insurgent bost by which that city is menaced. Meantime our navy yards have been active beyond any previous example, and the naval force which was so successfully employed in capturing the forts at Hatteras Inlet has been augmented to much more formidable disounded by the rebellion in one short cambon of white southerners. een augmented to much more iormidable dicould put down the rebellion in one short campensions.

Yet with all these advantages in our favor, is this which leads us, if a stray resepaper from the other side consures the rebel leaders, to fall straightway to prophesying that the Confederate Government is about tumbling into fragments. We fail to make the resolute effort

Even if a mortifying experience were not rapidly disenchanting us, a very little reflection would be sufficient to correct the error that this Gen. Banks's division across the Potomac and planting it on the Virginia side, to co-operate with the army under McClellan, has in consequence been abandoned for the present.

When we turn to what our navy is doing, we When we turn to what our navy is doing, we do not find much to reassure us. The expedition against the forts at Hatterss Inlet had a most brilliant result, and everybody said: "The expedition surely will not content itself with this single exploit, but will immediately proceed to seize upon Braufort while yet defenseless. this single exploit, but will immediately proceed to seize upon Beaufort while yet defenseless, and make us masters of the entire coast of North Carolina. This, however, was not done; week after week elapsed; Beaufort is now strongly fortified, and everywhere along the coast the rebels, admontshed by this proof of the weakness of their defenses on that side, have been putting forth every exertion to make them selves secure agalast our attacks. The very tablisence brought vesterday by the steamer selves secure against our attacks. The very intelligence brought yesterday by the steamer McClellan from New Orleans, while it shows the falsehood of the boast made by Hollins of his victory over our blockading fleet in that quarter, shows also the energy of the preparaquarter, shows also the energy of the preparaquarter, shows also the energy of the properties. quarter, shows also the energy of the preparations made by the rebels for their protection.

A formidable fleet of ateamers and a strange engine of naval warfare called the Manassas, by which one of our steamers was near being disabled, accompanied by a fleet of fire ships which covered the waters from shore to shore, lines segainst tweive, as it would appear if we

> Consumers. . . The South have also a great advantage, in the number of men they can call into service in the fact that the seat of war is in their own country. If a rebel force of ten thousand men should undertake to march fitty miles into Pennsylvania and attack a force of five thou-sand, they would not only be obstructed by their sand, they would not only be obstructed by their ignorance of the topography of the State, and harassed by akirmishing parties hanging on their fishks and rear, but before they could reach their destination the fire thousand men they went to attack would have swelled to fitteen or twenty thousand by the spontaneous rallying of the friendly labab tants. When the enemy had been repuised, these impromptu soldiers would immediately return to their homes and resume their customary employments. The South will have this advantage in a war conducted in their territory, enabling them to use a temporary militia against us al most without expense, while every soldier used against them is mustered into permanent service, and supported, at a heavy cost, at a great distance from home.

Despite these advantages of the rebels, there can be no doubt of the superiority of our mili-Our government has endeavored to reinforce its strictly military operations by certain strong measures of another nature. There is nothing dearer to man than personal liberty; the government has deprived individuals of this, arresting and confluing them on suspicion. In a free country no right is more prized, and justiy prized, than the liberty of the press. The government has refused to several newspaper establishments in this city the right of sending their sheets by mail, and has ecized large packages of these journals destined for circulation through other channels. So far as the personal arrests are concerned, although some of them were needless, yet there is no doubt of the superiority of our military resources, nor our ultimate success if we will make up our minds to wield our resources with proper vigor. It is a great deal better that we should fully awake to the magnitude and the difficulties of the contest now, than to have our eyes opened by a painful and mortifying experience. It is far preferable for the nation to tax in resources to the very utmost this year's operations, that we have got to exert all our strength merely to learn, as the fruit of this year's operations, that we have got to exert all our strength merely to learn, as the fruit of this year's operations, that we have got to exert all our strength merely to learn, as the fruit of this year's operations, that we have got to exert all our strength merely to learn, as the fruit of this year's operations, that we have got to exert all our strength merely to learn, as the fruit of this year's operations, that we have a power to make this a long and exhausting war if we attempt to prosecute it in any half-hearted, half way manner. But if we start, at the out-learn was the personned to extend the conviction that we have a power of the discount of the subject of the conviction that we have a power of the discount of the conviction that we have a power of the discount of the conviction that we have a power of the discount of the conviction tha are much greater than the net earnings of the same number of white laborers, thus furnishing a basis for maintaining a proportionably larger number of soldiers. This is, then, no contest of twenty millions against eight, as it would seem to be if we left the slaves out of the calculation altogether; nor a contest of twenty millions against twelve, as it would appear if we merely counted the slaves as adding four millions to the white population of the South; nor yet a contest equivalent to one of twenty millions against sixteen, as the fact that the women and children of the slaves are producere would make it; but a contest of twenty millions against sixteen, as the fact that the women and children of the slaves are producere would make it; but a contest of twenty millions against some number whose effective strength is larger than sixteen millions by reason of the fact that slave laborers are comparative non-
